1.4.404

a Lesson in the University of The New Covenant

Theodore Cottingham, November 5, 2006 11pm. North Kensington, London

www.unc.bz

1. Who can see the gleeful one? Gleeful to be glee'd, gleeful to be fulfilling my will, not; all-surrender, that my will is for all. I love you. On the path, not; being it. See all things in my hand, not; my hand being all things that thou art in me now, all-surrendered. I lovest you thou me. I love me, you, and all things about you, not; yea permeating and all surrendered are/being. I love you all.

2. The Cross, surrender, all-permeating humility and meekness coming forth ever/even more so; the Cross through and entering me you do/have and seest all things for yourself now, not; for all others beside/behind and following you/in your footsteps, not; mine, ours; father's. I love you all.

3. See what I have said, am saying, declaring not but for meat, bread not.

4. I give you me. Right on schedule/time and all things mine/are mine, in me, and me coming forth nicely, not; cataclysmically. Watch me. All. I love you. Goodnight. Amen.

5. See me kissing you goodnight, not; but all'ing you before midnight, not tonight, but what/whose night is it anyway, and whose counting/clock is being counted? I love you.

6. Into me see all and all things mine/present and all accounted for are/being me are.

7. I love you all.

Me

[the night before I left London for Farncombe]